The novel was published on October 7, 2009 by Delacorte Press, a random house imronta, and became a 2014 20th Century Fox film directed by Wes Ball. The Thomas plot wakes up in a metal elevator that takes him to the Glade. He has no memory of who he is or how he got there. Gradually he discovers that the Glade is run by two boys: Alby, the leader, and Newt, the second in charge, who maintain order by applying simple but effective rules. The elevator box appears under the ground once a week and supplies new food, tools, medicines and sometimes weapons. Every month, a new kid with no memory of anything but his name is in that elevator box. The Glade is surrounded by a four-mile-high walled square made of concrete. The walls have openings in them, which slide like doors every night. Outside the walls is the Labyrinth, a labyrinth of high concrete walls covered in ivy that changes every day. The Maze houses strange and deadly creatures. Known as the Grievors, they are described as amorphous metal and flesh monsters. Gladers are trying to stay alive as well as solve the Maze by naming runners to run through it as fast as they can while tracking the movements of the walls and trying to find a way out to escape. A day after Thomas's arrival, a girl, Teresa, is delivered via the elevator at the Glade with a note that says She's the last. Never. That means there won't be any more children sent to the Glade. The girl later falls into a long coma. When Thomas comes to visit her, he recognizes her, but he can't remember her name until he hears his voice telepathically in his mind telling him his name. Teresa wakes up and tells Thomas that they knew each other before being sent to glade, revealing that they could communicate telepathically. Minho, the keeper of the runners, and Alby go to the maze to see what they think is their first dead Griever. is stung by the creature, and while Minho is trying to help him out of the maze, Thomas runs to help, just as the maze doors close. All three are stranded in the all night long. Minho, believing that Alby is dead without the serum, tells Thomas to abandon him and simply run, seeking refuge so the Grievors won't find them. Thomas, unable to let Alby die, uses the vines on the walls to get him out of the Grievors' sight, attracts his attention and evades them. Minho sees Thomas' evasion tactic and uses it to send the four Grievors chasing them over the cliff. Thomas, Alby and Minho are the first people in the Glade to survive a night in the maze. After returning to glade the next morning, Newt calls a meeting of The Keepers to discuss what to do with Thomas. Some of the Guardians vote to free him from punishment, but others, especially Gally, vote to lock him up in the Slammer, the prison block, as punishment. Minho, however, nominates Thomas to replace him as the Keeper of the Runners. Gally decides to kick Minho out of the Council, causing Minho to attack him. Thomas is locked up in jail and, the next day, he begins his training with Minho. After her miraculous return, Teresa's arrival triggers a series of life changes in the Glade. People start acting strangely, the sun disappears, weekly deliveries of supplies stop coming, and the Gates of the Maze remain open at night, allowing the Grievors to enter the Glade and hunt down the children. Thomas proposes that the maze walls are not random, but that their movements are actually a code, leading to the discovery that the maze is spelling words. Thomas also discovers that what they previously thought was the cliff is actually the exit used by the Grievors to leave the labyrinth (Griever's Hole). That leads Thomas to think that they need memories to get out and so he is intentionally stung by a Griever so that he can receive the antidote (Duel Serum) and go through the Change. It is known that Change can trigger memories and sometimes violence. Thomas and the Gladers discover the pattern. The Gladers decide to flee on the way out as they know that taking on the Grievors is a suicide mission, but nothing is worse than their current fate. They succeed, only to discover that they were test subjects in an experiment conducted by the World In Catastrophe: Killzone Experiment Department (WICKED). The teenagers escape to a lab, but encounter Gally, who did not escape with them. Acting under mind control, he moves to throw a knife at Thomas, but a young Glader, Chuck, jumps to save him. After briefly mourning Chuck's death, the 20 Gladers are rescued. They are taken to a safe haven and told of the catastrophic solar flares that caused an apocalyptic event, followed by a virus, the Flare, which killed millions of people. Rescuers reveal that orphaned children are being to find a cure for the virus. The epilogue is written in the voice of Chancellor Ava Paige, a feature film of all the novels in the trilogy. She reveals that the group that rescued the Gladers may be another in the experiment and that the Gladers were not the only group being evaluated. Thomas Characters (named after Thomas Edison) The main protagonist of the novel. He's the last boy, but not the last person to enter the Glade. The only thing he can remember when he enters the Glade is his name, a common pattern among gladers. Chuck described him as about 16 years old, of medium stature and brown hair. He was called Greenie, a nickname given to newcomers. He becomes a runner with Minho after being the first person to spend an entire night in the maze and saves Alby when he is about to die. He has a telepathic connection to Teresa and was able to talk to her while she was in a coma. Teresa One of the main protagonists. The first girl and the last person to enter the Glade. When she entered the Glade she was in a coma and Newt thought she was dead. He also calls Thomas Tom. He's got a telepathic connection to Thomas. She is also known for helping Thomas out of the maze and fighting the Grievors at the Griever Hole. She is thin, has black hair and blue eyes, and relatively pale skin. Alby (named after Albert Einstein) The major and leader of the Gladers. He is described as 'The dark-skinned child with short hair, his cleanly shaved face'. Try to maintain order within the group by having all the kids follow the rules they've set to survive. He has a very close relationship with Newt, his second-in-command. I was in the group of 30 people who first arrived at Glade. Alby kills himself by entering a group of Grievors, thinking it was better for him to die there than outside the Maze. Newt (named after Isaac Newton) One of the main protagonists and is a good friend of Thomas and Minho. He used to be a runner, but he doesn't have a foot anymore. He is very friendly, friendly and welcoming with Thomas. He is Alby's closest friend and second-in-command and takes the start as a leader when Alby no longer feels able. Minho One of the main protagonists and is the Guardian of the Runners. He's in charge of navigating and mapping the Maze. As a runner, he is in very good shape and is described as an Asian boy with strong arms, strongly muscular and short black hair. He's sarcastic and a joker. He tends to react without thinking, which gets into trouble. He and Thomas quickly become good friends. Chuck (named after Charles Darwin) A young, chubby boy with curly hair who was the newest Glader until Thomas arrived. He immediately befriends Thomas and acts like a little brother to him. Chuck was a Slopper. He's about 12 or 13 years old. He is killed by Gally after he is thrown a knife while he saves Thomas. Gally The main antagonist. A Glader who lives by the rules Alby set in motion. He doesn't trust Thomas and shows an immense dislike for him. He is also the Custodian of the He flees the Glade in an attack of anger after exclaiming that he thought Thomas was untrusting in the At the end of the book, he kills Chuck by throwing a gun in his chest. (shot with a gun in the film) Ben A Builder. After undergoing Change and attempting to kill Thomas, he is banished to the Maze while still induced with the serum and still psychopathic and dies overnight. Ava Paige The Chancellor of WICKED and the person responsible for sending teenagers to the Maze. She appears in the epilogue in an email. Grievors biomechanical creatures lurk and kill gladers in the maze. In The Ending they are left free in the Glade to kill one person every day. Development By the end of 2005, Dashner had published four books to complete The Jimmy Fincher Saga, which had been with a small regional publishing house. His publisher wanted me to write another book, but he decided he would try a national book market instead. In November of that year he had an idea when it was to be about a group of teenagers living inside an unsolvable maze full of horrible creatures, in the future, in a dark and dystopian world. It would be an experiment, to study their minds. They would do terrible things to them – horrible things: completely hopeless, until the victims turn everything on their heads. The book was later published in 2008. [3] Dashner wrote the book from December 2005 to March 2006. [3] Reception Kirkus Reviews wrote: Hard to leave, this is clearly only a first installment, and will leave readers dying to find out what comes next. [4] Jessica Harrison of Deseret Morning News calculated The Maze Runner as an exciting adventure book for children over the age of 13 that will make readers' hearts pump and leave them asking for more. He noted that it starts a little slow, but as it coincided with Thomas' confusion and turned the pace back as he got more used to it, he wrote that it is almost as if Dashner was making it easier for the reader in what becomes a quick and non-stop action. However, he thought the only drawback was fictional slang, saying: Although it feels realistic and fits with its characters, it gets old pretty fast. On the plus side, however, it is used so often that the reader almost becomes insensitive and learns to ignore it. [5] Film adaptation Main article: The Maze Runner (film) Fox released a film adaptation of the book, titled The Maze Runner, on September 19, 2014. Wes Ball signed as director and T.S. Nowlin wrote the screenplay. [6] Dylan O'Brien played the title role of Thomas.[7] Thomas Brodie-Sangster played Newt[8] and Kaya Scodelario Teresa. [9] Ki Hong Lee as Minho, Blake Cooper, Will Poulter and Aml Ameen were added to the cast as, Chuck, Gally and Alby, respectively. Patricia Clarkson played the role of lead antagonist Ava Paige. Dexter Darden played Frypan, Alexander Flores played Jacob Latimore played Jeff, Randal Cunningham played Clint, Chris Sheffield played Ben, and Joe Adler played Zart. Wayne Haag served as an artist in the film, and Ellen Goldsmith-Vein, Lindsay Williams with Lee Stollman as Creature designer Ken Barthelme designed the Grievors for the film.
